Wylde's Scripture Atlas.

ADVERTISEMENT.

THE chief characteristic of the present Work is the fulness and completeness of the illustration which it furnishes of the various localities of the Sacred Narrative. It consists of a Series of Maps and Plans which embrace the entire extent of the regions referred to in the Bible, from the Holy Land to the farthest confines of "the East" on the one hand, and to the shores of that ocean which marked the ancient limits of Western discovery on the other. Thus, not only have Canaan and Egypt, Mesopotamia and Chaldea, Armenia and Assyria,—the scenes of the principal events of Sacred history,—their correspondent delineations in these pages, but those more distant and less known regions (which though only of incidental mention, are yet full of the deepest interest to the reader of the Bible,) as Ethiopia and Arabia, Sheba and Tarshish, have each such geographical illustration as the most erudite and laborious researches have been capable of giving. In like manner, the period of time to which the Maps refer is coincident with the entire extent of history, embraced both in the Old and New Testaments, commencing with the supposed site of the Garden of Eden, and the first dispersion of the families of mankind after the deluge, and terminating with the preaching of the Gospel by the Apostles among the nations of Asia Minor, and the countries of southern Europe.

Palestine itself, the scene of so many wonderful and Sacred events, claims naturally the largest share of illustration, and hence the student is herein supplied, not only with Maps which exhibit successively its condition at different epochs, but also with a separate Map of the territories possessed by each Tribe, on a scale so greatly enlarged as to admit of a minute delineation of the numerous interesting localities of Jewish history. The Reader of the Bible may here trace the wanderings of the early patriarchs of the Hebrew race, mark the traditional sites of their encampments and dwelling-places, or the hallowed spots in which their remains reposed in death, and note the reputed scenes of the numerous battles and other thrilling events which impart so much of human interest to the inspired records. It is believed that even in the present age of critical (and often of sceptical) inquiry, these qualities will be found to possess sufficient attraction for the simply devotional readers of the Bible, to justify the Publishers in the reissue of a work which thus identifies locally every place mentioned in the Sacred Narrative, and exhibits with topographical precision at least the supposed scenes of the most deeply-impressive events in the history of mankind. In its copiousness of illustration in these regards, the present volume may indeed justly claim to be, not so much an Atlas of Sacred Geography, in the strict sense of the expression, as a Geographical and Topographical Commentary upon the entire Scriptures.

The Publishers feel pleasure in drawing attention to the copious Index of words attached to the Work, in which every place mentioned in the Bible is identified by Latitude and Longitude, and referred to the Map in which it will be found. The Classical and Modern Names, where known, are also added, and distinguished by different characters of type, and a reference is given in every instance to one of the texts of Scripture in which the place is mentioned. The care which has been bestowed upon its compilation constitutes this a valuable Appendix to the volume, and will, it is confidently expected, assist in rendering the present Atlas a permanently useful as well as attractive companion to the Biblical student.

Note. AMERICA most probably was peopled from Siberia. The distance between the two continents in 65° N. Latitude does not exceed 20 miles, in a lower latitude a chain of Islands reaches - almost from one coast to the other. The inhabitants of the opposite coast resemble one another in their features, complexion, manners habits and customs. Their language indeed is different, but we are not sufficiently acquainted with this to say whether the dialects of the language spoken in that part of America may not have a near affinity with those of the Asiatic languages. The result is that different families or tribes of wandering Tartars probably migrated across Bhering's Strait and gave a beginning to population in the American continent.

* Those of Refuge were places already appointed in the law of Moses to be assigned as private for the security of those unhappy persons who without any design had been necessary to the death of their fellow creatures. These cities were six in number, three on either side the River Jordan. They are pertinent to the promise of the tribes. Every highland was reserved to them the roads of the right hand toward and at a river, the road was a direction left on which was written REFUGE, RESERVE for the guidance of him who was fleeing for security. REMARKS.

In the Kingdom of Sofala, there are mines of gold and silver, which appear to have been wrought from the earliest ages, and were opened when the Portuguese conquered the country. A tradition is common among the inhabitants that these mines and the remains of ancient buildings in their vicinity, belonged to the Queen of Sheba. The truth of this is said to be in possession of a native, which prove that in the reign of Solomon, the Israelites sent a fleet every third year to fetch gold from its ports. The Kings of the Isles mentioned in these voyages were probably the Kings of Madagascar and the islands in its neighbourhood.

NOTE

The extreme folly of Rehoboam's conduct upon his ascending the throne of Israel (1st of Kings 12), of the which, read immediately and they shall have been for their King. Two tribes only, namely those of Judah and Benjamin remained faithful to Rehoboam. These two kingdoms were termed that was of Israel and his successor was called the kingdom of Israel, and that name Rehoboam and his successor was called the kingdom of Judah. The origin of the latter was Jerusalem which had been the seat of government since the eight year of David's reign. The capital of the former was at Shechem, the principal city of the tribe of Ephraim whereas this kingdom is also sometimes called the kingdom of Samaria and sometimes the kingdom of Ephraim.

NOTE.

Tyre is supposed to have been originally built by a colony of Sidonians (Isaiah 23:2) on the remains of the ruins of a city destroyed and rebuilt by the name of Tyro by king Ibaal. The city of Tyre (Isaiah 23:15) was the most magnificent, according to history, ever known, which stands defiled in the ruins of Tyro, and though not destroyed, was long the chief seat of commerce, and the most important of the Phoenicians. The Sidonians were the first who made iron, which they derived from the slaves, and had a new city, which they called the destruction of the old one, and called it Tyro, which was the name of the old one. When Alexander the Great invaded Syria in 332 B.C., he destroyed the city of Tyre, and the city was never rebuilt, and the name of Tyre was never again mentioned in history.
